- Jellies
- Jams and Other Sweet Spreads
- Preserves
- Pickles and Fermented Foods
- Flavored Vinegars
- Barbecue Sauces
- Meats, Poultry and Seafood
- Dried Foods

The sample score sheets in this section contain four rating categories for characteristics of the food exhibit being judged. Event organizers may wish to use a different number of rating categories or different descriptors for the column headings. Examples of ways the columns may be used include:

- The number of checkmarks in each column may justify the type of ribbon awarded. “Excellent,” “Very Good,” or “Good” may represent blue, red and yellow ribbons, for example. A blue ribbon should have more checkmarks in the “excellent” column than other columns.
- The number of checkmarks in each column may justify the placings of products within a class. First place should have more “excellents” and “very goods” than second place, etc.
